We hope you had a fun holiday weekend and a chance to relax and rejuvenate.

We want to let you know The Office of Institutional Equity and Diversity launched a new website, History and Sense of Place, representing the work of the Campus Iconography Committee.

The website presents an inclusive look at Princeton's history as well as current efforts to create an inclusive sense of place on campus. You will find links to the Princeton & Slavery Project, Nassau Hall Lawn, "(In)Visible Princeton," and more. Facilities own Ron McCoy, University Architect, is a member of the Campus Iconography Committee.
